Oh, no.; handreds come and go without my being able o recollect their faces.

Re-ducet.—Suppose a person was in the habit of visiting your house for a period of five or six years, would not not be able to recollect his face? A. Yes.

Counsel for the defence—That is our case, your Honor. Counsel for the plaintiff—I new propose to read the written testimony of the wincesses we examined yestersay, as taken before .uds.e Stuart some two years ago. Counsel for the deience—I object to the reading of the focuments.

Counsel to the december to comments.

Judge Smith—What is the object of this testimony?

Counsel for the plaintiff—For the purpose of corrobouting what they testified to yesterday.

Counsel for the defendant—The first thing you ought to do as to produce the person who drew up these state news. I would like to see him on the stand.

Counsel for the plaintiff—He is zick and cannot atusel for the defendant-le be? I shall argue to Consel for the defendant—is ner 1 shall argue to the jury that we have done all we could to get him here. The Court held that such testimony as that offered by the consel for the plaintiff would only be admissible from the other side for the purpose of impactment. Mr. Fullerton—Your Habor will please note our ex-

Air. Folierton—Your H. Bor will please note our exception.

The summing up the case for the defendant the coursel sock the ground that the evidence of the witnesses for the plaintill was misorthy of belief, and was directed meanly against Madam Bell, with whom they were on bad terms. He also held that if Mr. Mellville's mouth was not sealed by the decision of the Court he could against Madam Bell, with whom they were on bad terms. He also held that if Mr. Mellville's mouth was not sealed by the decision of the Court he could again why this conspiracy was brought about. It did not follow that because a married man entered a bouse of prostitution he was guilty of adultery. He may have held legitimate business there, and his matutions may have been as pure as the angels. Mr. Mellville may have entered such a bouse for the purpose of seining some of his jewelry, just the samelas a physician would enter in the pursuit of his calling. It was a mere matter of trade, and many merchants who stand much higher in the community than the defendant were in the babt of doing it daily. It did not follow that be cause a man went to a bar to take a drink, and while there to rew has arms around a pretty girl and kissed her, that he was guilty of adultery. It might be puritanically wrong, but in the abstract there was nothing had or who, a about it, and the jury should not attach any importance to it. In conclusion the counsel stated that he believed his client to be as innocent man, and if the jury seaponded to their caths they would not upon light grounds sever those whom God had joined together.

Mr. Fullerton followed on behalf of the piantiff. The came, he claimed, was 'hnothed in a nuthell, the evicance was brief and the witnesses were few. The counse of the claimed, was 'hnothed in a nuthell, the evicance was brief and the witnesses were few. The counse for the defendant had also taken occasion to sharge the witnesses for the piantiff with perjury, simply because of the succe for the piantiff was brought in for the party of THE SUMBING UP FOR THE DEVENCE.

by because they were poor tailen prostitutes. Was Mrs. Belliville to follow her husband to these bouses of ill repute, and mingle with his loose companions, to procure evidence of his guilt, or was she to take the witnesses as a she found them? She could not take any other step than the one she had taken, and the counsel for the defendant chound not rait against those poor creatures; for Meliville himself, by his acts, was responsible for their appearance as witnesses on the trial. The speaker then proceeded to refute the idea that the witnesses for the plaintiff were anxious to ruin Madam Bell, and that Mr. Meliville's guilt or innecence was only a secondary consideration. He could not believe for one moment that if these women were militerated by the mostives the counsel for the defence attributed to them they would stop abort of ruining her in the most complete manner. Instead of doing her an injury, they were doing her a great service, by publicly advertising her place of business and peculiar calling. And, no in the what way the case went, Madam bell would go out of the court better off than when she entered it. Sacred as the bond of matrimony may be, it was the duty of the jury in this case to dissolve the contract, if the plaintiff had established the proofs of the defendant's adultery. The counsel then called the attention of the Court and jury to the pleadings where the defendant, upon

The counsel then called the alternate of the Court and jury to the pleadings where the defendant, upon his own admirston, did not deny the charge that he was in the tabit of visiting houses of prostitution. The counsel for the defence here objected to the reading of the pleadings at this stage of the case. The Court overrosed the objection, and noted the counsel's excep-lag of the pressuings at this stage of the case. The Court everroised the objection, and noted the coursel's exception.

Mr. Fullerton then proceeded to read the answer of the defendant in reference to his visiting a house of prostitution in Microer street, kept by Mary Fell, in which he did not seek to deny the alienation. The defendant denied that the ever visited Jane Mc ord's, but he was stient as to his visiting Mary Fell's. He could not deny it, for the evidence of his visiting Mary Fell's. He could not deny it, for the evidence of his visiting Mary Fell's. He could not deny it, for the evidence of his visiting Mary Fell's. He could not deny it, for the evidence of his visiting Mary Fell's. He could not deny it, for the evidence of his visiting Mary Fell's his guilt, and not to say his prayers. If he had any legitimate business there, he could easily prove it to the satisfaction of the jury. It was assumed on the part of the decence that the defendant was employed in selling lewelry when making these visits to Mercer street; but there was no proof of the fact. His visits to Madam Bell were frequent—every day occurrence—and yet the only articles of jewelry be ever sold during that period were a watch and a pair et carrings. The counsel then proceeded to review the evidence of the witness for the plaintiff, and said that, as they were to all shame, they had not lost their truthfulness. The very fact that the witnesses confessed their own shams without withholding anything was conclusive as to their truthfulness, and, because they did not resort to falsehood to cover up their degradation, it was no reason why the jury should discard their teatum, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were willing to tell the whole truth, while they were fortible

OBITUARY.

HORATIO N. FRYAYT, whose death was recorded in these columns a few weeks ago, was born in the city of New York and entered into business there at an early age, evincing extraordinary commercial talent. He became half owner of the celebrated Belleville White Lead Works, and afterwards formed the company of which he was President for many years and up to the time of his death. Being otherwise extensively engaged in business for the last thirty years, he was well known as an honorable merchant and high-toned gentleman. Honest in every sense, generous, hospitable and benevolent, rossessed of rare talents and extensive information, a kind father and brother, a sincere friend and a pure man, he died beloved and mourned by all who knew him, leaving behind him a name without stain and a character without represech. As far as less in buman nature he embedied the description of a good man in his favorite pealm, the fifteenth Paalm of David.

DEMOCRATIC GENERAL COMMITTER-TAMMANY Hall.—A meeting of the Democratic General Committee will be hed at Tammany Hall, on Friday evening, the 19th inst., at 7% o'clock. By order of WM. M. TWEED, Chairman,

20TH WARD -AT A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE WARD New York Democratic Association of the Twentieth ward, held at their rooms, 446 Eighth avenue, on Wednesday, Feb. 17, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted. ward, held at their rooms, 446 Eighth avenue, on Wednesday, Feb. 17, the following resolutions were unanimously adonted.—

Resolved. That the action of the Hon. Carolan O'Brian Bryani, member of Assembly from this district, at the late caucus of the democratic members of the Lerislature on the Police bill, in voting in opposition to all the other democratic members, meets with our impusified disapproval, and we trust that as the result of mature deliberation, his acts may not prove to us that in the presents in the past Lerislature there is to be found even one democratic false to the principles of the party and ready to go over to the enemy.

Resolved. That the course pursued by the Secator from his device, the Hon. Thos. C. Fields, in his debate on the Police bill, in denouncing the Hon. C. Godfrey Gunther, Mavor of the city, as a traitor and secresions is a mailcous libel on one of the purest and most consistent democratis in the United State, and one who could never be bought over the great principles of democracy.

Resolved. That we heartify endorse the political principles of which the Hon. C. Godfrey Gunther was the standard bearer at the late charter election in this city.

Resolved, That the Secretary be subscribed to publish the above resolutions and send a copy of the same to our representatives in the Senset and Assembly
